...JACK MARSH LAUGHLIN, the Monterey-Carmel Attorney, just promoted from Major to Lt. Col. in RESERVES. Got married last summer too. Lots of things to be thankful for this year, JACK..... LIONS--the Carmel variety--remind us of the Carmel LIONS CLUB'S pet projects-- KIDS of Carmel. That brings us to the annual MOVIE party the LIONS sponsor for the kids at the Carmel Theatre on Xmas MORNING at 10 o'clock. All the youngsters in town are welcome to come to this free party. Besides movies there will be presents for all distributed by real LIVE LIONS..... Seen around town again after his operation, ROY COPE. Looks fine. Glad to see you ROY..... Town & Country Realty now members of the Carmel Board of REALTORS. Although quite new as a firm they are an up and coming outfit and are located in that cute little blue office on the southwest corner of Dolores and Seventh..... Congratulations to KINGMEDOROS upon his marriage to HANNAH BAKER MITCHELL of Salinas. Now his goodlooking BOXER has a mama for Xmas..... DID YOU SEE an unattended motorcycle parked in a crosswalk on Ocean the other morning? And no cop gave the rider a ticket. Where was our traffic officer? He was picking up his marking stick a few feet behind his motorcycle--parked in the cross walk. Said ANDY: "I've got as good an excuse as the rest of you." Well, it's XMAS, Andy, and I guess the town will forgive you since you and the Missus take off today for REDONDA BEACH to see your grandson..... Architect FRANK WYNCOOP moving in next door to the SPECTATOR with his big office from the city. Taking over the old telephone building for a couple of years until he builds his own building. Also building the new house on the OCEAN side on Carmel Point..... FLORENCE GEISEN married today to BOB HART of the PUBLISHING business. His son who was accidentally shot last week at a CUB SCOUT meeting getting along fine..... BISHOP ZIEGLER of Carmel Highlands, invited and accepting invitation to be Chaplain on board the LURLINE for its Xmas cruise to Honolulu..... Celebrating birthdays: RALPH ERION who hosted a party Sunday at Robles..... MIKE GOULD who was hosted at a surprise party by the STAFF of the SPECTATOR, on Tuesday, at the home of DOROTHY McDONALD & MARJORIE LANDON..... Welcomed into the Carmel ROTARY CLUB at Wednesday's meeting were GLENN SOREY, Deputy Assessor, and Builder L. R. McWETHY. Before the meeting the club was entertained at cocktails on the House by Mgr. CHARLES REED of Highlands Inn..... GLADYS JOHNSTON was invited to INSTALL the new Officers of the Monterey Realtors Exchange, last Friday. Nice honor..... TOO BAD that the lovely and difficult job done by KATHLEEN McCOY for her mother's PINK POODLE PET SHOP was completely overlooked when the CHRISTMAS DECORATION prizes were awarded. Everything had to be painted in REVERSE on the windows. 15-year-old KATHLEEN deserves a big hand--at least. SEE what you think.....

CASH AWARDED TO SHOP DECOR WINNERS... The Decorator Shop and Der Ling Shop each were awarded first prizes of $50 in the Carmel Christmas decorations contest. The remainder of the $250 posted by Mark Thomas, owner of the Hearthstone restaurant, was divided into second, third, and fourth prizes of $35, $25 and $15.

There were two categories: interior and exterior displays. The Der Ling - Gadgets Unlimited facade pictured above was judged best in exterior design. The Fire Department, Seven Arts Court, and Wilder and Jones were the runners-up with their outside decorations.

The Decorator Shop (picture on page 10) received first prize in the interior division over the other winners -- Don Early, Spencer's House of Cards, and Kenneth Wood.

The Judges were appointed by the Carmel Business Association and included Allen Knight, Mrs. Stephen Crouch, Thomas Perry, Murl Ogden, and Mark Raggett.

Special mention should be made by two worthy displays that received no recognition. The Pink Poodle Pet Shop and Sade's Restaurant both deserve plaudits for their displays. Pictures of both appear on page 10.

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said, 'Dear Santa! Please send me absolutely free, under separate cover...'"

Well, every year about this time, the question pops up as to whether or not my friend and yours, Tiny Tim, really said, "God bless us every one." Or if he said just plain "let's eat." The rumor floating around now is that he didn't say anything. He couldn't, with his mouth stuffed full of Christmas goodies.

Most all of us know this tender, touching, little epic about a hard-pressed family, and a miserly Scrooge who was too tight to waste money on food, and in between saying "Bah, humbug," gradually starved. Probably his only worry about the hereafter was the fare, one way or the other.

It's a pretty safe bet that Santa Claus has a rough time of it, too. Just think of all the strange and varied requests he gets. Just to make it easy for him, how about asking for Fort Knox or Niagara Falls?

About this time of December, the packages start coming in from your friends and relations and the guessing is on. One of the big problems is (Continued on Page 19)

PARENT PROBLEMS. BEING A PARENT ISN'T EASY

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

When our children were growing up I really tried to follow the advice I gave other parents. But you know very well that I often failed thus to measure up; also, that as I became aware of my own failures, I suffered some remorse.

There were a few times, indeed, when I felt I should never make another speech to parents and never write another line of advice to them. But then again, on taking stock of some of my successes at self-discipline and self-improvement, I kept plodding on.

Prayer for Parents

One evening, on returning from teaching a class of parents at a university, I felt so overwhelmed at the gap between what I preached and what I practiced as a parent, that I sat down and wrote a prayer for myself. Part of it are these words: "Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me; and when I am out of sorts help me, oh Lord, to hold my tongue... With all thy gifts, Oh, Great Jehovah, give me calm and poise and self-control." (A copy of this prayer may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of The SPECTATOR, Box AO, Carmel.)

There are many good parents, exceptionally good ones, who are so blinded by their few discouragements they have as parents, that they rarely see the many times more good things that they do, and overlook the preponderance of their successes. I wish I knew how to help them see how good they are and to celebrate their own successes.

Trying Together

One mother has written me to tell me she feels sure her efforts at self-improvement are bearing fruit and that my own feeble efforts have contributed a bit, at least, to her successes. I feel that she and I are really trying together (though I have never met her) to climb upward. She writes:

"If we parents all had the perseverance and self-discipline in our natures necessary to follow your advice, what wonderfully adjusted children we all would have! However, with your assistance, many of us who might not be proper parents are learning to cultivate those qualities, and give our children at least some of the background they require.

"I want to thank you for the help I have obtained from your column in gradually quieting the inner disturbances (which no doubt have psychological origin) I had permitted to dominate our family life. I am sorry my own mother did not have your teachings to give to me earlier. But some day, if I can make myself over a few more times, I may become the kind of parent I should be.

"What success we have had in teaching our 11-year-old daughter to be kind to others, to cooperate with her teachers, to try to understand, as you said in a recent column, that she may have to deal later on with persons who vex her, I believe we owe in many ways to the things we learned from your articles."

I wrote this mother to congratulate her on her achievements, reminding her that all of us, like her, need to keep striving upward, and not let ourselves become too much discouraged over our own weaknesses and failures, but to build, with God's help, on our own strengths and celebrate our own successes and the successes of our mates and our children. Now I've got to work harder to be a better grandparent.

HILL THEATRE TO SHOW FILM BANNED IN N.Y.

When Hill Theater opens Christmas Day with "La Ronde," our community will be the fourth in the nation permitted to view this highly decorative and single-mindedly sexual film, which has been banned in New York for the time being. Audiences in Washington, D.C., Los Angeles and San Francisco have had to date the unique privilege of sampling the sophisticated movie version of Arthur Schnitzler's much-suppressed play which includes in its cast the 11 top French stars of the screen.

As to the cause of the furor itself, these audiences have found, with the NEWSWEEK reviewer, that, while they have never seen the theme handled with greater finesse, it is true that the film is "almost solely concerned with the subject of sex," and with the THEATRE ARTS reviewer, that it is "truly an extraordinary movie."

The celebrated movie will play at the Hill at least through New Year's Day. On Christmas and New Year's, performances will be continuous from 3 p.m. and mulled wine will be "on the house."

Gas and electricity are cheap in California!

Luther Burbank's tree in Santa Rosa is the scene of a national Christmas tree broadcast each year

P. G. and E. home rates are far below U.S. average!

The cost of living has nearly doubled since 1940, but P. G. and E. domestic rates are actually lower than 11 years ago! Nothing else you buy costs so little—does so much. Let

P. G. and E.'s bargain gas and electricity do more of your work, bring you more of life's comforts.

Take SANTA ROSA for example:

Typical residential gas and electric bill
In Santa Rosa	$9.18
In all U.S. cities of similar size*	$14.95

* Average for the 21 U.S. cities outside California between 17,500 and 18,000 population. Based on a typical use of 100 kilowatt hours and 100 therms of gas per month.

How to make good telephone service even better....

You won't miss important calls if you're a good telephone neighbor

Your party-line neighbors will consider you a real friend if you remember that often, they, or someone in your family may be expecting an important incoming telephone call. These other simple points will also help to insure better service: When you have a series of calls to make, allow a few minutes between them • Replace the receiver properly after calling • Always make sure the line is clear before you make your calls.

faster long distance service can be yours, if you give the operator the out-of-town number you're calling—rather than just the name and address. That way, you see, you won't have to wait while she finds out the number from "Information" in the distant town you're calling.

Monterey Peninsula craftsmen have received over $75,000 from the Carmel Work Center since its inception 18 months ago, according to George W. Beeman, the founder.

lines, and the mail order department is growing rapidly, due to advertising in national magazines and on radio and television.

"Making the splendid work of Peninsula craftsmen available to people everywhere has been a stimulating and exciting experience. We hope to extend the fame of our artisans much farther in the year to come," Mr. Beeman said in a recent interview.

The Carmel Work Center maintains a shop on Lincoln Street in Carmel and another shop with an art gallery included at the Pebble Beach Shops. There are also mail order and wholesale departments. Only the work of local craftsmen is sold.

ADMIRAL HERRMANN TO HEAD NAVY SCHOOL

Rear Admiral Ernest E. Herrmann, former superintendent of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School at Annapolis, Md., was in Monterey Monday morning preparing to assume command next Saturday of the new post-graduate institution here.

Brief ceremonies will be held at the Naval School Saturday morning at which time the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, will be officially activated. In assuming his post as superintendent of the Monterey establishment, Admiral Herrmann will relieve Captain John S. Tracy who has been commanding officer of the U.S. Naval School, General Line, in Monterey since last August.

Activation of the Postgraduate School at Monterey will bring about a long desired change by the Navy to center all of its postgraduate training at Monterey on the site of the former Hotel Del Monte, acquired by the Navy in 1948. The original postgraduate school was established by the Navy in Annapolis on the grounds of the Naval Academy in 1909 but in recent years it had outgrown its quarters and needed room for expansion. The Monterey site offered a highly satisfactory solution.

However, it was not until the closing hours of the last session of Congress prior to its adjournment in October that funds were appropriated for the move.

Since October extensive construction has been underway in Monterey in preparation for receiving the Postgraduate School. New buildings are being erected and present buildings are being fitted to house the many additional classrooms and laboratories that will be required.

Activation of the Postgraduate School will have no effect on the General Line program in Monterey but will merely add additional courses of instruction to those already taught here. Under the new arrangement the subjects taught will fall into two broad categories, the General Line curriculum and the Engineering curriculum.

Captain Tracy, on being relieved by Admiral Herrmann will become Director of the General Line School and Commanding Officer of the Naval Administrative Command, U.S. Naval Postgraduate School. His executive officer will be Commander R. W. McElrath. Captain H. A. Pieczentkowski, present executive officer, will become Officer-in-Charge of Ordnance Engineering in the Post-graduate School.

Admiral Herrmann's Chief of Staff will be Captain H. D. Krick, who was officer-in-charge of Ordnance Engineering in the Post-graduate School.

ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S

WHO IS IT?

Once upon a time near the ancient city of Constantinople, lived a merchant and his three daughters. The merchant was very poor. Thus when it came time for his daughters to marry, the merchant was unable to provide them with suitable dowries. Despairing therefore of ever making matches for them, he prepared to give them up to a life of shame. But then a seeming miracle occurred. One morning, mysteriously, the three daughters awoke to find three full bags of gold in their room--more than enough to make the most handsome dowries.

Legend doesn't tell us whether or not the dowries got the girls their men. If so, however, the three had Santa Claus to thank for their good fortune--in real life Nicholas, Bishop of Myra in Lycia, later known as St. Nicholas.

Today the character of Santa Claus has become a complex personality, a mixture of legend, superstition, and faith. The cherubic white-whiskered, red caparisoned North Pole dweller who flies through the skys by night behind eight souped up reindeer (not counting Rudolph of the Red Nose) bears slight resemblance to the 4th century churchman from Asia Minor. Yet he is still endeared to children and grownups, too, as the symbolic bearer of secret gifts in the night--a personification of that part of the Christmas Spirit which is the Spirit of Giving. (It may be noted that the original St. Nicholas is the patron saint of children, scholars, sailors--and merchants.)

This saint who unwittingly became part of the Christmas pageant was born in Pataia, Lycia, some three hundred years A.D. He became the Bishop of Myra during the time of the Emperor Diocletian and was persecuted and tortured for his faith. He was known for numerous healing miracles, and for his great love of children. (In works of art he is generally depicted with three children standing in a tub by his side.) Thrown in prison by Diocletian, he remained there a martyr until released during the more tolerant reign of Constantine.

The oldest known monument to the cult of St. Nicholas seems to be the Church of Sts. Priscus and Nicholas built at Constantinople by the Emperor Justinian. His name appears in 9th Century martyrologies, and churches dedicated to him have been found dating from the 11th century.

In 1087 the inhabitants of Bari, in Apulia, seized his remains by ruse and spirited them away to Bari where the foundations of a basilica were laid over them in his honor.

There are nearly 400 churches in England alone dedicated to St. Nicholas. Oddly however, this rolly-polly, jolly and generous individual (as popularly depicted in many countries)--is the patron saint of Russia.

The Santa Claus legend was first celebrated on the Eve of St. Nicholas--December 6--but was subsequently made to coincide with Christmas Eve. Thus the association of Christmas and "Santa Claus," the latter name an American corruption of the Dutch form of St. Nicholas (Sant Nikolaas.)

Therefore though some people believe in Santa Claus and others do not--there is no doubt that a live flesh and blood Santa did exist. Whether he exists today or not, and in what form, depends upon the individual. To the child he is very much flesh and blood and can easily get stuck in a chimney. To the young sophisticate, he is dad with the addition of pillows and whiskers--but still the bearer of gifts. To the idealist he is the Spirit of Giving. And to the materialist he is Big Business.

In whatever form you know him he's very much in evidence these days.

THREE CHEERS FOR SANTA

Thank Heavens for jolly old Saint Nick and the millions of kids who believe in him! 'Twould be a dismal year indeed without the fun and fantasy that go with the Christmas season. And what would we do without the friendly Christmas trees and the gay decorations and the bright lights and the brighter light in the eyes of happy children? There aren't many thrills in life to compare with a youngster's anticipation on the "night before Christmas"—except its fulfillment on Christmas morning. And there are few thrills for a parent to compare with that of having part in the whole delightful confusion.

So, whether you're three or ninety-three, never doubt that there's a Santa Claus. There is. Maybe he doesn't look quite the way we portray him and maybe he doesn't live at the North Pole. But the old boy is very real, for anyone who can make everyone feel happier, and more tolerant toward his fellow man, couldn't be a nonentity.

Anyway we're glad that in spite of wars and worries and uncertainties in the world Santa never fails us. He's our selection for the man of the year—this year or any other.

that the package from Uncle Al, that you hope contains at least a mink coat always holds a year's supply of Life Buoy, or something else similarly useful. Depressing, isn't it?

Maybe a different idea would be to invite a dozen or so friends to a party. Send out invitations for the 22nd of December, and hold it over 'til the New Year, and thus kill two birds with one stone. Think what you could do; pop corn, watch television...

The old-fashioned idea was to take a sleigh out to Grandma's house, "Over the river and through the wood, to Grandmother's house we go," and stuff yourself, politely, full of Christmas turkey, two or three, soup, salad, appetizer, plum pudding, and/or pumpkin pie.

Speaking of plum puddings, is it plum pudding or rum pudding? Besides, I've never tasted a plum. Another cute trick I hear they did at Grandma's was to pour a certain amount of alcoholic beverage in innocent looking coffee and then, just before you took a big swallow, set the whole mass on fire. Kept your stomach warm, anyway.

Going down to the pond on Grandma's farm for a little ice skating was also a lot of fun. Most of the older folks spent the greater part of the time "fighting off the chill they didn't get because they were sitting around a roaring fire." If that's ice skating I'll take mine inside.

Well, what with holidays coming on, and vacation and such, it's probably time to wish a "Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good night."
